

SUPPLY CHAIN TRAILBLAZERS

22:22 FELLOWSHIP

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

About the Program

The supply chain has never been known as a career path many women in business pursued. However, that is changing. Today, the role of the supply chain has expanded and is now recognized as a critical ingredient in business success.

At the Digital Supply Chain Institute (DSCI), we are committed to helping women discover fulfilling careers in this vital area. The DSCI 22:22 Fellowship Program, our second cohort, will accept 22 women seeking a career in supply chain operations. We believe by combining high-touch mentorship with training on contemporary supply chain trends, we will help more women excel as supply chain leaders. Be a TrailblazeHer!

Why this Program is Different

Over the course of three months, participants will receive professional growth opportunities through valuable 1:1 mentoring sessions. In addition, there will be applied learning sessions led by DSCI experts & women leaders, and monthly peer group activities for networking and problem-solving.

“My highlight from the program is the relationship with my mentor and how she helped me with the issues I was facing at work. Having an outside source to really mentor me through some of these issues was a huge win for me. It has changed the way I am doing things and the outlook for my career.”

Julianne Keel, DTC Sales Operations Analyst, Under Armour
